Novel; an academic satire, a Southern gothic. Again set in South Carolina as was Baldwin's of award-winning Hard to Catch Mercy (Lillian Smith Award). Professor Paul Danvers, at the bottom rung of the History Department ladder of a minor university, sees a chance to secure tenure on discovering a student proves to be a direct descendant of a certain Capt. Jack Fennel --- key figure in a Civil War-era historical controversy! Danvers (a little devious) courts student Ginny Fennel and soon begins to sift through her family's papers --- lighthouse keepers since the American Revolution, ancestors include slave dealers, black marketers and adventurers --- despite needing to fend off Ginny's uncle, homicidal maniac Leroy Ramona, who has incestuous designs on his niece, and, who slips into the personality of her great-grand-aunt and thinks it's 1861. Read to find see if Paul Davers will perish instead of publish .
